

ATHING OF BEAUTY

The Extensive Greenhouses of Mr. Max Hess Are Opened,

AND THE COMING WEEK WILL SEE

Large Crowds of Visitors, who will become Enthusiastic Over the Wonderful Things Mr. Hess Has Accomplished—A Description of the Establishment which Ranks with the Best—Rare and Beautiful Flowers are Seen on Every Hand.

An Intelligent representative made a trip out the pike yesterday afternoon and was shown by the proprietor over the extensive Max L. Hess greenhouses, which are located just west of Wheeling Park on the Elm Grove motor line, a ride of twenty-five minutes from the city.

Mr. Hess, although a young man, is a florist of high attainments, of which the public is somewhat acquainted through his recent connection with the Wheeling Park staff, where he was for a long time the florist and landscape gardener. During the last year he has been making preparations for opening his own greenhouses. He has accomplished wonders in that time. It is doubtful whether another such a tower of beauty was ever collected in so short a time. Usually it is the work of years to make even the start, and that Mr. Hess has accomplished what he has done in a twelve-month, is due to the experience he had while at the park.

Mr. Hess has not yet named his beautiful place, and is open to suggestions. Though the Intelligent is not authorized to make the offer, he will no doubt make it worth the while of anyone to suggest a name that will fit the floral paradise. And in this connection it should be remembered that a bunch of flowers is worth earning these bleak and altogether untropical November days.

Mr. Hess' greenhouses are arranged in the usual manner. There are three, each being 25x75 feet, and at the end of the three are located the reception room, office and packing departments, while in the basement is located the steam heating furnace, an important adjunct of greenhouses. When the visitor is shown into greenhouse No. 1 he is astounded at the magnificent showing that is made. Palms and all kinds of decorating plants are strewn on all sides. The palm display is particularly fine, and the number of chrysanthemums made it a pardonable blunder for one to imagine he is in the "prize" corner of one of the chrysanthemum shows, now one of society's fads. Mr. Hess has not yet entered into the rose business, but before the flowers of spring are here again, he will have one that will compare with any in the land. Only the rarest and best roses will be grown.

The second greenhouse is devoted to bedding plants, and almost every plant in the catalogue of flowers is seen here. The display of geraniums in bloom is particularly attractive. No. 3 greenhouse is devoted to carnations, one of the most popular of flowers. The violets too are shown here, and Mr. Hess is growing a violet that seems to possess a finer aroma than any yet seen in this neighborhood. Mr. Hess will make a specialty of flower vases and hanging baskets. Much of his time next spring will be given to this work. At that time, too, he will extend his business to shrubbery and trees of all kinds.

Next week will show week at the Hess greenhouses, and the genial proprietor extends a cordial invitation to the public to visit his place, which, without flattery, is a credit both to himself and this city.

Just as he had stepped off the pavement, he was struck by one of Reymann's brewery wagons, and knocked down. He was carried into Goetze's drug store, where he received medical attention. It was found that the tonque of the wagon struck him in the side, and one of the horses stepped on his back. It was thought at first that he had received internal injuries, but such was not the case. There was some excitement yesterday morning over the sudden death of Mrs. Mattie Smith, widow of William Smith, the man who was killed by the cars at the coal tipple near Moundsville, some time ago, but there was no occasion for it, as she died of heart disease. She had been out the evening before with lady friends, but was attacked by a severe pain in the left breast and went to her home. A physician was summoned and recommended quiet rest and thought no serious consequences would result. She seems to have passed a comfortable night and in the morning her sons told their mother to remain in bed and they would get breakfast, but before they succeeded the mother came down stairs. In a little while she had to lie down again from severe pain and at 8 o'clock she was dead. She was forty-nine years of age and leaves four sons ranging in age from nine to twenty-three.

Stomach, sometimes called waterbrash, and burning pain, distress, nausea, dyspepsia, are cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla. This it accomplishes because with its wonderful power as a blood purifier, Hood's Sarsaparilla gently tones and strengthens the stomach and digestive organs, invigorates the liver, creates an appetite, gives refreshing sleep, and raises the health tone. In cases of dyspepsia and indigestion it seems to have "a magic touch."

"For over 12 years I suffered from sour with severe pains across my shoulders, and great distress. I had violent nausea which would leave me very weak and faint, difficult to get my breath. These spells came oftener and more severe. I did not receive any lasting benefit from physicians, but found such happy effects from a trial of Hood's Sarsaparilla, that I took several bottles and mean to always keep it in the house. I am now able to do all my own work, which for six years I have been unable to do. My husband and son have also been greatly benefited by Hood's Sarsaparilla—for pains in the back, and after the grip. I gladly recommend this grand blood medicine."

OUT WITH OLD NOSTRUMS.

Try Paine's Celery Compound, the Most Advanced Remedy That Science Can Give.

MRS. R. R. PRATT.

There are very intelligent men and women who still prefer open fires to steam pipes and furnaces.

But only a very shallow-minded person would deliberately choose an old-fashioned remedy in case of sickness.

Sufferers from neuralgia, rheumatism or kidney trouble want the surest and most advanced remedy science can give them. Getting well is not a matter of sentiment, but the most seriously practical matter. That is why the most thoughtful and conservative people now use Paine's celery compound, and recommend it to friends and relatives who are threatened or afflicted with nervous exhaustion, sleeplessness, disordered liver or blood diseases.

That wonderfully acute and patient investigator, Prof. Edward E. Phelps, M.

D., LL. D., of Dartmouth college, embodied in Paine's celery compound the most progressive, yet thoroughly established, views on the cure of diseases of nervous origin.

All the limitations of Paine's celery compound—every one knows how many there are—have proved to be entirely wide of the mark. Their promises of astonishing curative abilities are easily made on paper, but they are not kept.

It is easy to verify every claim made by Paine's celery compound. There is no village so small but it contains families in which this wonderful remedy has made some member well. Men who weigh their words and are careful what they write above their signatures have publicly given this great invigorator its deserved credit for health-making powers such as no other remedy ever received.

That Paine's celery compound certainly cures such diseases as neuralgia, sleeplessness and dyspepsia does not admit of a doubt. It builds up the entire nervous system, pumps out the tissues, starts the blood into healthy circulation and regulates the action of the nerves. It makes people well, strong and energetic.

Mrs. R. R. Pratt, of Centre Brook, Conn., whose portrait is given here, says plainly:

"I find Paine's celery compound a perfect medicine. I took several bottles for general debility, and it did for me all I could ask. It made me well. I have recommended it to my friends, and they all speak in its praise."

Paine's celery compound is the most assured and direct means of getting back a full store of vitality. It is a true nerve regulator. It exterminates all vicious humors that linger in the blood. It cures rheumatism, and is used by physicians as a specific for this disease. Says Mrs. W. R. Johnson, of Cape

Rosier, Me.:

"I was attacked with rheumatism in its worst form. I employed the best physicians, but received no permanent relief. When I commenced to take Paine's celery compound my feet and hands were swollen so badly that they were useless. I could not walk a step, and was suffering very much. When I had taken four bottles of Paine's celery compound I could walk well, and I continued until I took six bottles. It made me perfectly well, and I have been every since. I wish the whole world might know of its great value."

Paine's celery compound makes people well!

Winter searches out the weak part in the body; cold settles in the lungs, organs and develops disease. Make every part of the body sound; build up the strength and be ready for the onset of cold weather by taking Paine's celery compound.
